FOREWORD

Many a literary visitor has felt the charm of Charleston. Among them we may single out Emerson, who was there in 1826, and in more recent times Owen Wister, Joseph Hergesheimer, and Amy Lowell. Emerson saw Charleston in its better days; the later visitors doubtless wished that they might have walked its streets before Charleston became a place of memories. For Charleston was once the most distinctive cultural center of the Old South. What Charleston thought and said was echoed far to the westward. In population and in commercial importance Charleston had already fallen behind the Northern cities, but culturally it was no mean rival of Philadelphia or even Boston. Politics attracted most of the best talent, but not all; and a multitude of pamphlets, addresses, newspapers, and magazines survive to indicate Charleston's interest in things of the mind and spirit.

Dr. Hoole's check-list reveals a steady succession of Charleston magazines of various types. Most of them were short-lived and were probably not widely read; but if we except The Southern Literary Messenger in Richmond and DeBow's Review in New Orleans, the best of the early Southern magazines were published in Charleston—and they were probably better than any later Southern magazines. The Southern Review was perhaps a little heavier than its Boston rival, The North American, and it had no Bryant among its contributors; but no one can have looked into its files without feeling respect for the intelligence and erudition of Hugh Swinton Legaré. The most indefatigable promoter of Charleston magazines was William Gilmore Simms, who had a main finger in many of them. The last of the more notable Charleston magazines was Russell's, launched in the same year (1857) as The Atlantic Monthly and edited by Paul Hamilton Hayne.

As one glances over the detailed list of these magazines, one wonders what were the aims and hopes of the men and women who founded them. Experienced editors like Simms knew that financial profit was not to be expected. Most of the optimistic editors who launched magazines wanted to give South Carolina or the South a literary organ and promote the growth of a Southern literature. Our historians have dwelt too exclusively upon political matters; they have had much to say about secession and slavery but too little about other aspects of Southern life and thought. They have studied the plantation régime, but they have had little to tell of the Southern cities and towns. The political movement which looked to a separate Southern nationality had its parallel in other matters. The South wanted to be economically independent of the Northern merchant and manufacturer; and it wanted its own system of education, its own literature, its own newspapers and magazines. Prospectuses and editorials testify to the editors' desire to promote the intellectual independence of the South. The Civil War ended the dream of a separate Southern nationality, but even before the war the way of the Southern magazinist must have been a difficult one. Many of the editors must have shared Lowell's disillusionment over his ill-fated Pioneer and like him emerged with nothing but debts and disgust with the public for its indifference.

The student of Southern history and literature cannot afford to overlook the magazines which Dr. Hoole has listed, for their files contain material indispensable to the investigator. With the check-list which Dr. Hoole has provided, the student will find it for easier to study the literature and culture of Charleston. And what the literature of the South needs today is less uncritical praise and more intelligent study.

A CHECK-LIST AND FINDING-LIST OF CHARLESTON PERIODICALS
1732-1864

INTRODUCTION

The following bibliography, prepared as a section of a doctoral dissertation at Duke University, is an attempt to present chronologically an annotated check-list and finding-list of the magazines published in Charleston, South Carolina, from its founding through the Civil War.

The line of demarcation between a magazine and a newspaper has been at times difficult to determine, especially in the case of religious weeklies, which are ostensibly magazines in that they contain essays, poetry, little or no current news, are devoted to one purpose, are frequently paged consecutively, yet sometimes possess formats that resemble modern newspapers.¹ In such instances I have depended more on content than on format or periodicity. As there were no rigorous rules for publication in this era, periodicals often bore likenesses to newspapers, reviews, essay-journals, or perhaps combinations of these. This is especially true in the earlier days: the scarcity of magazines and the demands of readers compelled editors to make their works as eclectic as possible. As examples of this, three periodicals (I-III), generally considered as newspapers but having distinct magazine features, have been included. Since my purpose has been to present a survey of periodical publications (exclusive of newspapers), I have at times perhaps overstepped the bounds which commonly circumscribe modern magazines by including various types of serial publications.

1. See nos. XIV, XV, XVI, XIX, XX, XXI, XXIV, XXV, XXXVI, XXXVIII, XLI, XLII, XLIII, L, LIX, LXII, LXIX, LXXII, and LXXXII. This is particularly true in the case of the Southern Christian Advocate (XLI) which devoted almost an entire page of each issue to poetry, essays, letters, and stories.

Throughout the first sixty years of the nineteenth century one of Charleston's chief claims to literary recognition lay in the publication of periodicals. As early as 1732 a weekly magazine-newspaper, The South-Carolina Gazette, was printed in the city. This initial attempt, one of America's first endeavors in the publishing world, ran until 1800 and gave rise to a large number of literary, religious, and miscellaneous publications. Of the 70 magazines actually published between 1795 and 1864 (there were 9 others proposed but not published), only 3 were begun before 1800; 22 were begun, 1800-1829; 12, 1830-1839; 19, 1840-1849; 10, 1850-1859; and 4, 1860-1864. Thirty-eight of these 70 published magazines were devoted to Literature and the Arts; 19 to Religion; 4 to Medicine; 2 to Historical Societies; and 1 each to Agriculture, Temperance, Masonry, Commerce, Politics, Chess, and Insurance. Included in the 9 which were proposed but not published (these generally failed to materialize from a lack of guaranteed subscribers) 7 were to have been devoted to general literature, 1 to the advancement of science, and 1 to religion. Over the entire period, 1800-1864, Charleston's white population averaged less than 15,000, a fact which makes more outstanding the many attempts to create mediums of expression.

One of the most indicative facts brought to light by a study of this kind is not so much the number of periodicals begun as the promptness with which they passed out of existence. It has been aptly said that Charleston was "a graveyard for magazines"; and one might add that the graveyard was most certainly filled with youth. Indeed, several magazines begun in other towns were brought to Charleston to die.² The average life of the 30 literary magazines whose dates are ascertainable (there are 8 whose dates are not obtainable) was only 25 months, or slightly more than 2 years. Religious periodicals met with better success: the average life of the 17 whose dates are ascertainable (those of 2 are not) was 269 months, or more than 22 years. But this average may not be an altogether fair one for comparison, for it includes two magazines which are still being published today, and one (LXIX) which did not come to an end until 1921. Without these three, the average life of the remaining 14 is 107 months, or approximately 9 years. The average life of the 4 medical journals was 75 months, or slightly more than 6 years.

Only two of the periodicals begun within the years under consideration are in progress today, the Southern Christian Advocate, begun in 1837, and The Southern Presbyterian, begun in 1847 (XLI, LXII). Others, however, had comparatively long runs: The United States Catholic Miscellany was published approximately 40 years, 1822-1861 (XIX), The Gospel Messenger about one-half that time, 1824-1853 (XXI), and The Southern Agriculturist slightly more than 18 years, 1828-1846 (XXVIII). the Southern Quarterly Review, one of the ablest of all the periodicals, lived 16 years, 1842-1857 (XLVII), Caroline Gilman's The Southern Rose, Charleston's only magazine edited by a woman, went into 7 volumes, 1832-1839 (XXXIV), and Hugh Swinton Legaré's The Southern Review lived 4 years, 1828-1832 (XXVII). The Southern Literary Journal was published 3 years, 1835-1838 (XXXIX), Paul Hamilton Hayne's Russell's Magazine, the best known of all the Charleston magazines, managed to survive only 3 years, 1857-1860 (LXXVI), and The Magnolia, brought to the city so that it might prosper under the guidance of William Gilmore Simms, went out of existence after 3 years, 1840-1843 (XLIV). The Charles- ton Medical Journal and Review, after a 16-year run, made another attempt at permanence in 1873, but failed after 4 years (LX). As a rule the various magazines were even more ephemeral: the average length of existence for the 70 magazines whose dates are obtainable, including the two in progress today, is approximately 10 years. Excluding the two current magazines, and the one which ended in 1921, the average is less than 6 years. After 1865 the conditions seem to have been no better. Two magazines founded in 1869 were brought to an end in a few years.³

In spite of the brief existence of separate periodicals the list as a whole indicates the interests, attitudes, and tastes of the average intelligent Charlestonian of the period. Furthermore, there is evidence on every hand to suggest that founders and editors of the magazines were sincere in their belief that through the creating of mediums of expression for Southern writers they were lending impetus to the expansion of American literature. Certainly it is in the magazines that one is able to note the progress which was made in Southern literature. Listed among the editors are some of Charleston's most able literary men: William Gilmore Simms was interested in 8 of the magazines (XXIII, XXIX, XXXV, XLIV, XLVII, XLVIII, LVIII, LXXVI), Hugh Swinton Legaré was sometime editor of one (XXVII), William Henry Timrod, the father of the poet, founded one (XIII), and Paul Hamilton Hayne was a moving force in the management of three (LXIII, LXXIII, LXXVI). James Louis Petigru, Langdon Cheves, Samuel Gilman, Stephen Elliott, D. K. Whitaker, J. D. Legaré, J. B. Irving, William Henry Trescott, and others—all were interested in journalism.

Failure of the magazines was due to one or a combination of the following reasons: (1) Charleston was, especially during the first quarter of the nineteenth century, an isolated city. However much concern there was about direct trade with Europe and the improvement of facilities for transportation, Charleston remained, more or less, a community decidedly cut off from the great centers of population. This fact not only increased the strong feeling of provincialism or sectionalism,⁴ but noticeably prohibited the possibilities of growing subscription-lists. (2) A lack of finances caused by the non-payment of subscriptions made it necessary to bring many of the periodicals to a close. There seems to have been a decided aversion on the part of the otherwise chivalric gentleman of the Old South to paying his debts. (3) Before the Civil War authorship in the South was looked upon with skeptical eyes. Belles-lettres were considered as an added accomplishment, an avocation, usually relegated to a secondary position by the law, medicine, or other pursuits. The quality of material published in periodicals was usually inclined, therefore, to be inferior to that of the English or even the Northern periodicals. (4) In spite of the enormous amount of propaganda in favor of Southern merchandise, manufactures, and literature, the average Carolinian clung to the magazines of England with a tenacious faith. As he talked of the support of Southern enterprises, he bought his clothes as well as his books and magazines from London and Boston.

4. For example, notice the frequent use of the word "Southern" in the titles after 1825.

For the sake of brevity in this study it has been found expedient to use a system, and, except in instances where various information is unavailable,⁵ the material is presented in the following order: Title, Editor or Editors (Ed.), Printer or Printers (Pr.), Dates (inclusive of beginning and ending), Format, Price, Contents of the magazine, and Holdings of the libraries. The symbol CF, as given after a library's code, means "Complete File." The Roman numbers affixed to footnotes serve as cross-references to both titles and editors.

The finding-list in this study embraces only those holdings which are not included in the Union List of Serials in the United States and Canada (1927) and its two Supplements (1925-1931; 1931-1932). Where my information checks with this work, I have simply referred the reader to the Union List. Additional information only is given; and in order that this study may serve as a supplement to that work, I have used the same symbols wherever possible. For libraries which are not in the Union List I have employed suitable abbreviations.

I wish to express my appreciation for the invaluable help I have received from the libraries whose names (with their symbols) appear at the end of this section. Without their coöperation this task could not have been accomplished.

Particularly do I want to thank Dr. Jay B. Hubbell and Mr. J. P. Breedlove of Duke University—the former

5. It is to be regretted that in several instances (for examples, see nos. VIII, XI, XIII, LXI, LXVI, LXXV, LXXIX, LXXX) not even scattered numbers of periodicals have been preserved. In such cases I have been forced to rely on contemporary newspaper comments and magazine notices.

THE SOUTH-CAROLINA GAZETTE, Containing the Freshest Advices, Foreign and Domestick. Weekly. Ed. Thomas Whitmarsh. Pr. Thomas Whitmarsh, "at the sign of the Table Clock on the Bay." Ja 8, 1732-S 8, 1733.¹ Folio, 4pp. Current news, letters, moral essays, poems.²

1. The paper ceased upon the death of Whitmarsh. L. Timothee recommenced publication, F 2, 1734, and began the numbering anew. In I, no. 10 (Ap 6, 1734) he changed the spelling of his name to Timothy. After no. 256 (D 28, 1738) Timothy died, and no. 257 was issued Ja 4, 1739, by his son, Peter. Publication ceased with no. 2054 (D 18, 1775), but was resumed with no. 2055 (Ap 9, 1777) as The Gazette of the State of South Carolina. Peter Timothy was, in 1780, captured by the British, and publication again ceased. In 1782 his wife, Anne, revived the paper and ran it until 1792 as a bi-weekly. Her son, Benjamin Franklin Timothy, resumed almost immediately the publication as The South Carolina State Gazette, and Timothy and Mason's Daily Advertiser. This came to a final close in 1800. (2) This periodical is in the strictest terms not a magazine, especially after S 8, 1733. It is generally considered a newspaper (see Isaiah Thomas, The History of Printing in America, Albany, 1874, II, 169-170; Elizabeth C. Cook, Literary Influences in Colonial Newspapers, 1704-1750, New York, 1912, pp. 230-265; James M. Lee, History of American Journalism, New York, 1923, pp. 47-48). Lyon N. Richardson, A History of Early American Magazines, 1741-1789 (New York, 1931), p. 14, says that "the South found the newspaper a channel especially apt for its needs, as it offered an outlet for literary energies," and adds that "Whitmarsh . . . made The South-Carolina

Gazette highly entertaining with the Meddlers' Club series of moral essays." The compiler has included it because, in these early days of periodicals in Charleston, the Gazette served as both magazine and newspaper, containing, in addition to news, not infrequent poems, sermons, letters, essays, etc., by contributors, and because the Prospectus (I, no. 1, Ja 8, 1732) states that "in a word, such may be assured of having their Essays, whether in Prose or Verse, inserted in this Paper every Saturday, who take care that the Purport of them be not too manifestly opposite to the Principles laid down. . . ."

L'ECHO du SUD: MONITEUR FRANÇAIS. Tri-weekly. Pubs. Jean Dacqueny and Alexander Bourgeois. Ap-Jl 15, 1801(?).¹ 4to. Essays, current news.²

1. These dates estimated from earliest issue found, that of Ju 22, 1801 (I, no. 28). Last issue available is I, no. 37. (2) This information from Clarence S. Brigham, "South Carolina Pamphlets" (American Antiquarian Society Publications, XXXIV, 273, October, 1924). Brigham states that the distinction between magazines and newspapers "has sometimes been difficult to draw," and that "the test has generally been the inclusion of current news." The compiler has found, however, that this test will not always hold good, as frequently periodicals which are ostensibly magazines print current news. See III.

Ja, 1805-D, 1807.³ 8vo., 40pp. (With the Literary Miscellany total no. pages. approximates 80). $6 per year. Essays, poems, historical, critical, and theatrical news.

1. Editor states in the prospectus of I that his magazine shall have two parts, "each of these parts shall be paged separately from the other, so that at the end of the year the twelve numbers may be divided into two volumes; one under the title Historical, the other that of Literary Register; and with the last number of the year, a separate title page and index shall be given, to be prefixed to each volume." This practice was discontinued at the end of the first volume. The third title is that used by Bristed upon his securing sole control of the magazine. (2) Carpenter edited I in Charleston; II (D, 1806-Mr, 1807, nos. 1-4) edited by Carpenter in N. Y. C., with Bristed as assistant; II (Ap-My, 1807, nos. 5-6) edited by Bristed. He acquired sole possession of the Register April 16, 1807 (See Preface, II). (3) I contains nos. 1-12 (Ja, 1805-Jl, 1806). A prospectus only was published S, 1804. No nos. for S, 1805-Mr, 1806. II includes nos. 1-6 (D, 1806-My, 1807); III contains nos. 7-12 (Ju-N, 1807); IV contains one no., D, 1807. See Mott, op. cit., pp. 260-261.

THE QUIVER. Weekly. Ed. Isaac Harby.¹ Pr. J. Hoff, 6 Broad St. O 3-D 19(?), 1807 (no. 12).² 8vo., 16pp. $5 per year. "Original essays, criticisms, communications."

The first issue was to have appeared the first Monday in September (ibid., Ag 10-11, 18-22, 1807), but delayed payments postponed it until October (ibid., S 2-26, 1807). The Courier and The (Charleston) Times, O 1-2, 1807, urged payments of "250 cents" or the editor would be compelled "to erase them from the list." Courier, D 5, 1807, contains a letter signed "A Subscriber" which laments that the last issue of The Quiver contains notice of its discontinuance. To this letter the editor of the Courier added this footnote: "We perfectly accord with the sentiments of 'A Subscriber', and regret that we have another proof that Charleston will not support a literary production." The Times, D. 24, 1807, contains a letter signed "A Friend to Merit" which deplores the ending of The Quiver and adds, "although the Quiver, from the youth and inexperience of its author, may not altogether be complete and perfect in its kind, yet it bid fair . . . to add . . . no inconsiderable share of credit and lustre on the rising genius of American Literature. . . . I trust the generosity of Carolinians will yet come forward to patronize a work highly commendable and deserving of public patronage, and enable our young and meritorious Editor to reassume his labours." THE EVENING SPY. Weekly. Ed. William Henry Timrod. 4to.¹

1. William Gilmore Simms (The XIXth Century, II, 695-696, February, 1870) states that the Spy was a magazine edited by the elder Timrod "somewhere between 1813 and 1816." Simms also recalled that the magazine contained a large portion of the original poetry of its editor. In Poems of Henry Timrod (Memorial Edition, Boston, 1899), p. x, this comment is found: "[William Henry Timrod] was the editor of a literary periodical published in Charleston, to which he himself largely contributed." W. L. King, The Newspaper Press of Charleston (Charleston, 1872), pp. 147-149, calls the Spy a newspaper, and states that it was begun in 1822. A check of the daily papers for 1812-1818, 1821-1822 failed to reveal any further information concerning the Spy. No file.

1. Courier, O 25, 1813-Ja 5, 1814. Ibid., Ja 5, 1814, states: "Those ladies and gentlemen who have obligingly interested themselves in . . . The Mirror, are solicited to make return of the names, on or before the 13th inst., as it is intended to issue the first number on Saturday, the 15th inst. [Saturday, however, came on the 16th.] The Courier subsequent to Ja 16 contains no further notice of The Christian Mirror. No file.

Foreign intelligence and domestic news, poetry, essays, and church proceedings.

1. Date of last available copy. S. M. Tenney, Curator, Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Montreat, N. C., states in a letter to the compiler that the Intelligencer continued "probably until about 1826 or thereabout." George Howe (History of the Presbyterian Church in South Carolina, Columbia, 1883, II, 427) says that "The Southern Christian Intelligencer was issued in Charleston from March 19, to December 29, 1821." *PAPIRIUS CURSOR, or THE GAME RUN DOWN.*² Occasional. Ed. Edwin C. Holland. J1 27, Ag 13, S 24, 1821. Essays, satire, humor.

1. William Gilmore Simms (The XIXth Century, II, 923, May, 1870) says that this magazine was issued "by the wits about town, [Edwin C.] Holland, [Henry T.] Farmer, [William] Crafts, etc." for the purpose of ridiculing Thomas Bee's Omnium Gatherum. It succeeded in quizzing the latter "quickly out of existence." (2) This title used for the issue of S 24, 1821. See Courier, J1 26, Ag 13, 1821. See XVII.

THE UNITED STATES CATHOLIC MISCELLANY. Weekly. Ed. John England, 1822-1842;¹ R. S. Baker, 1842-1861. Pr. 1822-D 20, 1825, Gray & Ellis; J1 22, 1826-Ju 20, 1835(?), Jeremiah Dennehy, Friend St.;² Thomas Martin; John Healey; William J. Mosemann; Walker & James; Harper & Calvo. Ju 5, 1822-D, 1861.³ I, 4to.; II-V, 8 vo., 16 pp.; remaining volumes (?) 11"x15", 8pp. $4 per year. Poetry, current news, church proceedings, foreign intelligence, etc.

1. In 1825, while England was away, John McEnroe and the Reverend Messrs. John Bermingham and Timothy McCarthy edited the Miscellany. Baker edited the magazine after England's death in 1842. (2) Last copy examined (XIV, Ju 20, 1835) does not indicate that Dennehy ceased printing at that time; the other printers were employed "at different times," in all probability following Dennehy. (3) I (Ju 5-D 25, 1822); suspended Ja-D, 1823; II (Ja 7-Ju 30, 1824); III (J1 7-D 29, 1824); IV-V (Ja-D, 1825); suspended Ja-Ju, 1826; VI-XIV (J1 22, 1826-Ju 20, 1835); as far as the compiler has been able to discover, the other volumes were issued regularly. The magazine came to an end when the great fire of December 11, 1861, destroyed about one-half of the city. This information based on King, op. cit., pp. 169-172; Peter Guilday, The Life and Times of John England (New York, 1927), I, 452-473; and J. J. O'Connell, Catholicity in the Carolinas and Georgia (New York, 1879), p. 57, who says that the Miscellany "stood for forty years like a beacon-light on the watch-towers of the Church." Mott, op. cit., p. 136, erroneously gives 1832 as the date of the last issue of the Miscellany. See also Paul J. Foik, "Pioneer Efforts in Catholic Journalism in the United States, 1809-1840," The Catholic Historical Review, I, 258 (October, 1915).

1. First title used I-XII; second thereafter; third is a variant of the first. (2) Probable chief editor for I-III, F. Dalcho; for IV-XIII, C. E. Gadsden. In 1835 there was a change in the editorial board (see XII, 384, D, 1835). (3) J. N. Cardozo, Reminiscences of Charleston (Charleston, 1866), p. 35, says that the magazine continued until 1853, volume XXIX. The Courier, F 13, 1851, comments editorially that the Messenger has been in operation for 27 years, and that A. E. Miller is publisher. I-XII (Ja, 1824-D, 1835) ran without a break; XIII was not begun until Mr, 1836, the lapse in publication being explained in XII, 384, and XIII, 3. From this time until XVI (F, 1840) the first issue of each volume is March. Beginning with XVII (Ap, 1840) the first issue of each volume is April; the delay of one month in getting re-started is explained in XVII, 1. See The Southern Episcopalian, I, 46 (April, 1854). THE ALBUM: A Weekly Literary Miscellany. Courier, Ju 15, 1825, gives notice that "the prospectus of the above publication has been presented to the public. . . . It suffices to say that [the promoters] are young Charlestonians . . . urged by laudable and honorable motive of establishing . . . such a periodical journal, more adapted to those of their own age, as is issued in every other metropolis in the Union. It will be devoted . . . to the circulation of such original matter, as may be sent to their columns by those at home." Southern Patriot, Ju 9, 1825ff., states The Album is to be 8vo., 8pp., 25¢ per month, and is to be published by "A Society of Young Gentlemen," provided 100 subscribers are obtained. A survey of the above newspapers subsequent to June failed to reveal any further notice of the magazine. William Gilmore Simms, then a young man of twenty, was perhaps one of the promoters (see William Stanley Hoole, "William Gilmore Simms's Career as Editor," The Geor-

1. This title was never used; advertised in proposal, Courier, Ju 7-Jl 26, 1828. (2) Title never used; advertised in proposal, ibid., Ju 27-S 6, 1828. (3) Title used I (S, 1828-Mr, 1829) as monthly, editors Simmons and Simms; went into but seven nos. Same title used again in new series, as semi-monthly (My 15-O 15, 1829); ran into eleven nos., with Simms as sole editor. (4) Title never used; advertised in proposal by James S. Burges (ibid., Ag 29-N 7, 1829). (5) This title used for one number. After the cessation of The Southern Literary Gazette as a semi-monthly, O 15, 1829 (no. 11), Burges, a printer, who had been advertising a proposed new magazine under the fourth title, employed Simms to edit his magazine. Burges's title as advertised and Simms's title of the deceased Gazette were therefore combined to form the fifth title. Soon after, Simms became part owner (with J. S. Duryea) of the City and Carolina Gazettes (see Courier, D 31, 1829), and the entire project of the Literary Gazette was dropped. THE SOUTHERN EVANGELIST. Weekly. Ed. Theophilus Fisk,¹ assisted by H. F. Sterns and S. J. McMorris, corresponding editors. Pr. ". . . at the Office of the Evangelist." Ja 1, 1834(?)-1836(?).² 4"x10", 8pp. $2.50 per year. Sermons, essays, poetry, church proceedings.

1. The following comment from III (J1 9, 1836) indicates that Fisk did not edit the first two volumes: "In assuming the duties and responsibilities of conducting the Southern Evangelist, it may be proper to say a few words to its kind patrons. . . ." III, no. 39 (O 1, 1836) announces that L. F. W. Andrews will "become joint-editor at the commencement of the next volume." There is no indication that the magazine ended in 1836, nor is there proof that Ja 1, 1834, is the exact date of the first issue. The compiler has been unable to locate further copies.

THE SOUTHERN MAGAZINE. The compiler thinks that this magazine never reached the first issue. Courier, Mr 14-Jl 29, 1834, contains the prospectus which states that James S. Burges, 180 King St., proposes to publish this journal of "40 pages, royal octavo size . . . price $5 per year," to be edited by James Haig. The "Literary and Philosophical Society" of the city endorsed the project in a letter signed by Jacob de la Motta, Secretary. An examination of the Courier subsequent to the last printing of the prospectus failed to reveal any further notice of the magazine. No file.

THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN SENTINEL. Weekly; monthly.¹ Ed. Thomas Magruder and W. C. Dana. Mr 2, 1839-D, 1841. 8 vo., 6pp. An organ of the Union Presbytery of Charleston.

1. King, op. cit., pp. 176-177, says that the Sentinel was organized to oppose certain "unconstitutional and unjust" acts of the Assembly of the United States Presbyterian Church in 1837-1839, that it was not self-sustaining, and that it was brought to a close at the "end of 1841." Ja, 1842-F, 1857.² 8vo., average 300pp. $5 per year. Essays, reviews, political and historical articles.

1. G. A. Wauchope, The Writers of South Carolina (Columbia, 1910), p. 14, maintains that C. Mortimer was editor in 1855. The compiler is inclined, however, to agree with Mott, op. cit., pp. 724-726, who states that, whereas Mortimer purchased the magazine in 1854, Simms remained editor until the end of 1855. It is possible that the magazine was begun in Charleston in 1842, and later transferred to New York where a new series (under second title) was begun. See Gertrude Gilmer, Checklist of Southern Periodicals to 1861 (Boston, 1934), p. 51.

THE EPISCOPAL PROTESTANT. The compiler believes that this proposed magazine never reached the first issue. Courier, S 7-O 20, 1843, contains the prospectus. It was to have been a weekly of "decided Evangelical and Protestant tone," $3 a year, edited by William H. Barnwell, Rector of St. Peter's Church. Subscription-lists were deposited for signing at various bookstores of the city. An examination of the newspapers subsequent to O 20 failed to reveal any further notice of the Protestant.

St.; II, Heriot & Tenhet. My, 1844-Ap, 1846.² 8vo., 16pp.³ $1.50 per year. Stories, poems, music, and general literature.

1. The first title is the correct one; the others are merely popular names, frequently found in newspaper advertisements. (2) This information obtained from the Courier, My 13, Ju 6, Jl 9, Ag 12, O 9, N 12, D 21, 1844; D 10, 1845; Ja 14, Mr 4, My 13, 1846; and from the Orion, IV, 197 (June, 1844). The latter states that the Wreath "is nothing more or less than that pleasing little journal, The Bouquet, newly baptized and apparelled. Formerly a weekly newspaper sheet—it is now a handsome monthly. . . ." Courier, My 13, 1846, states that the Mr and Ap nos. are printed as one issue. As that double number completed the second volume, and as there are no further notices available, the compiler believes that the magazine ended Ap, 1846. (3) No format notices available. Courier, Ju 14, 1846, notes editorially that "the Editor opens the New Year with considerable improvements," the Wreath being enlarged and "embellished with handsome steel engravings." THE PALMETTO: A TEMPERANCE JOURNAL. Weekly. Ed. L. P. Ashby. Ag 23(?), 1846-? ¹ $1 per year. "To give a correct interpretation of temperance reform."

1. Courier, Ag 24, 1846, recognizes the first number. Ibid., S 15, 1846-Ja 16, 1847, contains the prospectus which states that one number has appeared, and appeals for support. Subsequent to Ja 16 there is no notice of the Journal, hence it may be supposed that the project failed after the first issue. No file.

(#2), no. 1 (D 28, 1865)-1893; in Clinton: 1893-1908; in Atlanta: 1908-Ju 8, 1910; in Richmond: Ju 15, 1910-present. Folio, 1847-1893; 11"x14", 20pp, 1893-? $2.50-$3 per year, 1847-1860; $10 for six mos., 1865; $4 per year, 1866; $2.50 per year, 1868; $2 per year, 1898. Devoted to the activities of the Presbyterian Church.

1. Title used 1847-1868; 1893-1908. (2) Title used III n.s., no. 52 (D 24, 1868)-1893(?). The Presbyterian Index was edited by John H. Rice in Mobile, Alabama. It ran into two volumes (Mr 15, 1866-O 31, 1867); at its expiration it was bought by The Southern Presbyterian. The two titles were combined. (3) Title used 1908-1920. The Central Presbyterian was commencing volume XLIV; The Southern Presbyterian (Atlanta) was commencing volume LVIII; The Southwestern Presbyterian was beginning volume XLI, at the time of the merger. (4) Title used 1920-1931. The subtitles were merely dropped. (5) Title used JI 1, 1931-present. The Presbyterian Standard (Charlotte, N. C.) was beginning volume LXII, no. 25, when it was taken over by The Presbyterian of the South. The titles were combined. (6) The Presbyterian of the South ("C") celebrates a record of "one hundred years of service." This centennial dates, not from the founding The Southern Presbyterian in 1847, but perhaps from the founding of The Charleston Observer, in 1826. This is perhaps explained by the fact that, although the Observer is not lineally connected with The Southern Presbyterian which followed it by being published in Charleston, the same line of descent is traceable through The Watchman and Observer, and The Central Presbyterian (Richmond, Va.), the former of which, before the merger, had its origin in Charleston. The current volume of the paper in question is (in 1935) CIX. Vol. C, no. 1, contains a brief editorial stating that "one hundred years of service will be completed with the end of 1926." (7) Based on the fact that I n.s., no. 12, is dated Ja 19, 1861 (see The Southern Presbyterian Review, Columbia, IX, 151, July, 1855). (8) Last copy printed in Columbia that has been examined by the compiler is III n.s., no. 36 (J1 9, 1863). (9) Publication was suspended after this number until D 28, 1865, when a second new series (I, n.s., no. 1) was begun in Columbia. (10) For assistance in gathering this material the compiler is indebted to S. M. Tenney, Curator, Historical Foundation, Montreat, N. C. See James Stacy, A History of the Presbyterian Church in Georgia (Atlanta, n.d.), pp. 280-281. See XVI, XXV.

*THE WEEKLY NEWS AND SOUTHERN LITERARY GAZETTE*⁴

THE WEEKLY NEWS AND GAZETTE. Ed. William C. Richards, assisted by D. H. Jacques, Edwin Heriot, and Paul Hamilton Hayne;⁵ Paul Hamilton Hayne; John Cunningham, assisted by J. N. Cardozo. Pr. in Athens, Ga.: C. L. Wheler; in Charleston: Richards & Walker, 101 E. Bay St. In Athens: My 13, 1848-D(?), 1849; in Charleston: Ja 7, 1850-Ag 14, 1856(?).⁶ I, imp. 8vo., 8pp; III-I n.s., "enlarged"; II n.s., 10"x12";⁷ III n.s.-VI n.s., folio, 4pp. $2 per year; n.s., $3 per year. Essays, poems, stories, reviews, literary miscellany.

1. This title used I, in Athens; beginning with Mr 3, 1849, notices appear that II will begin My 5, 1849, with "a new and enlarged series," under the second title. (2) Courier, Ja 9, 1850, states that this journal has been transferred to Charleston, and that the first issue appeared there Ja 7, 1850. (3) Ibid., Ap 30, 1850, advertises this (third title), and announces that a new volume will begin My 4, 1850. Ibid., D 21, 1850, contains the prospectus for 1851, and adds that it is "the only weekly journal of its class now published south of the Potomac." This title was used until the merger with The Weekly News, edited by Paul H. Hayne, and owned by W. Y. Paxton and B. E. Pringle (see King, op. cit., pp. 81-82). (4) Courier, Ja 22, 1853, announces the incorporation of the News and the Gazette. The combined titles were used Ja 29, 1853-Mr 11, 1854, when the fifth title was adopted and used until the end. Under this last title the paper lost much of its literary quality and became simply a political news sheet. (5) Richards was assisted by Jacques Ja 7, 1850-O 6, 1851 (ibid., Ja 9, 1850); Heriot joined the staff in O, 1851 (ibid., O 6, 1851), taking the place formerly held by Jacques (see The Southern Literary Messenger, XVII, 701-702, October-November, 1851). Richards retired in D, 1852, left for New York City, and Hayne, who had acquired the Gazette (as part payment of a debt, no doubt) for $800, and "on whom, for the last six months, its chief editorial management has devolved," became owner and editor, issuing his first number, Ja, volved," became owner and editor, issuing his first number, Ja, 1853, as III n.s. (ibid., D 21, 1852); see also the letter of Hayne to his wife, D 31, 1853 [error for 1852] in the Duke University Library. He remained editor through Mr 18, 1854 (into volume IV). On Mr 11, 1854, the adoption of the fifth title probably indicates the change of editorship, though Cunningham's name does not appear as editor on the masthead (with Hayne as assistant) until Mr 23, 1854 (IV, no. 165). The lapse of more than one week in issues is explained by the change of publication from Saturday to Thursday. With the issue of Mr 22, 1855 (in volume V) Hayne's connection with the paper ceased; Cunningham, assisted by Cardozo, continued as editor. (6) This is the last available issue; there is, however, no proof that the paper ceased at this time. (7) Courier, Ja 7, 1852, states that "we have just received the first number of a new series . . . in a new shape, being the size of the London Punch . . . at $3 per annum." See Irving Garwood, op. cit., p. 92. See XLVI, XLVIII, LVII, LXIV, LXVII.

THE SCHOOLFELLOW: A MAGAZINE FOR GIRLS AND BOYS. Monthly. Ed. William Richards. Pr. I, in Athens, Ga., C. L. Wheler; II-IV, in Charleston, Richards & Walker, 101 E. Bay St.; V-IX, in New York, Dix, Edwards & Co., and Miller & Co. In Athens: Ja-D, 1849;¹ in Charleston: Ja, 1850-D, 1852; in New York: Ja, 1853-Jl, 1857(?). 12mo. and 8vo., average 32pp. $1 per year. Tales, poems, riddles, letters, charades.

1. Courier, Ja 25, 1850, states that the first volume was printed in Athens, Ga. Ibid., Ja 17, 1851, announces that the third volume, which is the "second since the removal of the publishing office to our city," has just begun. Richards moved to Charleston in December, 1849, bringing with him both The Schoolfellow and Richards' Weekly Gazette. The title-page of volume I indicates, however, that The Schoolfellow was printed simultaneously in Athens and Charleston. Ibid., D 21, 1852, announces editorially that, in the future, the magazine will be published in New York. The last number located by the compiler is IX (Jl, 1857); the magazine later merged with Merry's Museum. See XLVIII, LXIII.

THE SOUTHERN AND WESTERN MASONIC MISCELLANY. Monthly. Ed. Albert G. Mackey, M. D. Pr. Walker & James, 101 E. Bay St. N, 1849-N, 1852.¹ 8vo., 32pp. $2 per year. "Devoted to . . . every subject of interest to the craft of freemasonry."

1. No issues for D, 1849, and F, 1850; however, there were two issues in Ja, 1850. III, 355 (N, 1852) states that "we shall postpone the issue of the first number [of volume IV] from December to January, to enable our subscribers to send on their names and money." This indicates that the magazine was not thriving financially, and since subsequent numbers have not been located the compiler believes that the above issue was the last. However, Sabin (XXII, 354) states that V, no. 4, was the last issue. This information is based on "an unidentified sale catalogue."

THE SOUTHERN ECLECTIC MAGAZINE.

Monthly. Prs. Walker & Richards. 1850(?)-unknown.¹ 8vo., 32pp. $1 per year.

1. The compiler has been unable to find further information. Courier, My 2, 1850, contains notice that the Eclectic is a "monthly miscellany of choice literature, selected from the Gazette and other sources . . . each number embellished with a Southern Portrait or landscape, finely engraved on wood. Price . . . to subscribers of the Gazette, only 50¢." Walker & Richards advertised that the magazine "is now issued [1850] from their press." It therefore seems unreasonable to believe that this magazine had any connection with The Southern Eclectic, published in Augusta, Ga., Mr, 1853-Ju, 1854, and listed in ULS, p. 1367, and USS(1), p. 563. See LXIII. No file.

Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Whitaker. Pr. I, E. C. Councell, 119 E. Bay St. and J. B. Nixon, 48 Broad St. (in Charleston); I. C. Morgan (in Columbia). First title: Jl-D, 1850; second title: My, 1851-Ag, 1853(?).² 8vo., average 110pp. $5 per year. Essays, poems, "a magazine for the people."

1. First title used for the first series (in Charleston); the second used thereafter. Courier, F 28-O 29, 1850, contains the proposal; ibid., Jl 11, 1850, reviews the first issue. (2) Last issue in Charleston: I, no. 6 (D, 1850); first in Columbia: I n.s., no. 1 (My, 1851). Ibid., Ag 29, 1851, states editorially that "we have just received after a long absence from our table, Whitaker's Magazine. The number before us purports to be the first of volume I of the new series . . . now printed in Columbia. . . . The delay in publication has been occasioned by circumstances over which neither

Mr. Whitaker or Mr. Morgan has any control." The magazine was later merged with The Southern Eclectic of Augusta, Ga. ULS incorrectly lists this magazine as having been published in Columbia, Ga. For explanation of delay in publication, and for the notices concerning change of titles, see I n.s., 94-95 (My, 1851). See Irving Garwood, op. cit., p. 100. See XXXIX, XLVII.

THE SOUTHERN HOME JOURNAL OF EDUCATION AND DOMESTIC INDUSTRY

HERIOT'S MAGAZINE. For the following reasons the compiler thinks that this proposed magazine was never printed: Courier, D, 9, 1850-F 28, 1851, contains the prospectus. "The subscriber proposes, as soon as his subscription list, now in progress, will warrant the undertaking, to publish in this city, A Monthly Journal. . . . The Home Journal will be issued on the first day of each month, to be the same dimensions as the Southern and Western Masonic Miscellany . . . 32pp, and furnished at $2 per annum (signed, Edwin Heriot)."
Ibid., Mr 4, 1851, states that "we have been requested by Mr. Heriot to state that having been unsuccessful in enlisting the cooperation of a publisher, he has decided to undertake its publication and sole proprietorship. . . . The Journal will be issued Bi-monthly, each number containing 48 pages octavo, at $2 per annum. The first number will be issued as soon as 300 names are obtained." See also DeBow's Review, I n.s., 99, July, 1851). Courier, Mr 26, 1851, states that the first number "will be issued in July, if the agents obtain a subscription list sufficient to pay the expenses of publication." Ibid., O 6, 1851, notes that The Southern Literary Gazette of Saturday, O 4, contains the announcement that Edwin Heriot "will hereafter be associated in the editorial conduct" of that paper. "Mr. Heriot wields a ready and graceful pen, and the patrons of the Gazette have reasons to be grateful that they will have the benefit of his literary labors." The first title listed is the correct one; the other was used popularly in advertisements. See XLVI, LVII, LXIII.

Chappell. Pr. (1850-1855) in Charleston: I, nos. 1-4 (Ja 1-F 15) published simultaneously in Charleston and Nashville, Tenn., for the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the book agent, John Early, and printed by C. Canning; (1856-1921) by the publishing house of the Church, Nashville, Tenn.⁴ Ja 1, 1851-D 25, 1921. Ja-Ju, 1851, 9½"x13", 8pp., semi-monthly; Jl-D, 1851, 9½"x13", 16 pp., monthly; 1852-1862, 11½"x15", monthly; 1867-1875, 4pp., monthly; 1875-1898, 4pp., weekly; 1899-1921, 8pp., weekly. 50¢-75¢ per year. Stories, poems, strictly denominational in tone.

1. The Southern Methodist Conference of 1850 passed a resolution that "there shall be established at Charleston . . . a Sabbath-school journal, with a general depository in Nashville" (Journal of General Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 1850, pp. 210ff.). First title used 1850-1898; second used 1899-1909; third used 1909-1921. In 1921 The Visitor was superseded by The Torchbearer (for girls), The Haversack (for boys), and Our Young People (for older students). (2) Nashville was captured by Federal troops, F 25, 1862. Publication was in all probability suspended then, for in 1866 the Conference voted "to resuscitate" the magazine (Journal of General Conference, 1866, p. 82). (3) A new series was begun Ja 1, 1867. The oldest copy available to the compiler after the recommencement was that of Jl, 1873 (VII n.s., no. 7). (4) It has been impossible to ascertain the exact date of change from Charleston to Nashville; however, the Conference of 1854 voted to establish a printing house in Nashville, and The Home Circle, printed by the house, was in operation there in 1856. For most of this information the compiler is indebted to Bertha Childs, Librarian, Methodist Episcopal Church Library, Nashville.

THE SELF INSTRUCTOR: A Monthly Journal, Devoted to Southern Education, and to the Diffusion of a Knowledge of the Resources and Power of the South, as Represented by the Negro, the Rail and the Press. Ed. Richard W. Habersham. Pr. Harper & Calvo, 32 Chalmers St., and Walker & James, 3 Broad St. O, 1853-Mr, 1854 (no. 5).¹ Royal 8vo., average 32pp. $2 per year. Stories, songs, political matter, strongly sectional.

1. Nothing appears to indicate that this was the last issue. The compiler strongly suspects that it was, however, for in the last the editor states, "very few have sent in their subscriptions. . . . If the Self Instructor had nothing to live upon but its subscription list, there would be not enough of it left to bait blackfish." The magazine failed to appear in either N or D, 1853.

THE COLLEGE OF CHARLESTON MAGAZINE. Monthly. Eds. "Three members of the senior class." Pr. James, Williams, & Gitsinger, 3 Broad St. Ap, 1854-? ¹ 8vo., average 30pp. $2 per year. Essays, poems, book reviews.

1. I, nos. 1-2, 6-10 (Ap-My, N, 1854-Mr, 1855); II, nos. 1-2 (Ap-My, 1855) have been located. As I, no. 10 (Mr, 1855) contains the valedictory address, there is a likelihood that there were only 10 issues per year; the magazine was perhaps not published during a two months' summer vacation. See XXXI.

CCL and CLS have above mentioned copies. NN: II, nos. 1-3 (O-D, 1898), a descendant of the above.

*THE SOUTHERN EPISCOPALIAN.*¹ Monthly. Ed. I-III, J. A. Shanklin, C. P. Gadsden, and J. H. Elliott; IV-IX, C. P. Gadsden and J. H. Miller, 3 State St. Ap, 1854-Mr 7, 1863(?)² I-II, 8vo., average 48pp.; III-IX, 8vo., average 56pp. I-II, $2, III-IX, $2.50, per year. Essays, sketches, reviews, religious intelligence.

1. This magazine is a descendant of The Gospel Messenger. See The Southern Episcopalian, I, 46 (April, 1854). (2) Courier, D 31, 1861, states: "In consequence of the difficulties which attend all attempts at publication or collection, in these days of war, we have decided to suspend for the present the issue of our periodical (signed C. P. Gadsden and J. H. Elliott)." However, the magazine continued until IX, no. 9, Mr 7, 1863. In all probability there was a lapse in publication early in 1862. Volume VII contains 9 nos. (Ap-D, 1861). See XXI.

THE NEW MAGAZINE. A magazine of this title was never published. The proposal appeared in the Courier, S 5-N 18, 1856, with slight variations, signed by W. B. Carlisle and Paul Hamilton Hayne. Ibid., Ja 1, 1857, contains the announcement that Russell's Magazine would appear Mr 1, 1857. As this announcement is signed by Carlisle, Hayne, and Russell & Jones, the compiler believes that Hayne and Carlisle sought the aid of John Russell, well-known bookdealer, and the new title was the outcome. See LXIII, LXXVI.

1. Properly speaking, the Collections must be considered as an annual, rather than a magazine; but in view of the fact that it is listed in ULS, and because it gave impetus to the founding of the current The South Carolina Historical and Genealogical Magazine in 1900, the compiler deems it advisable to include it. (2) The officers were: James L. Petigru, President; James Moultrie and William Henry Trescott, Vice-Presidents; William J. Rivers, Secretary; F. A. Porcher, Recording Secretary; and A. H. Mazyck, Treasurer. See LXXIV.

(Ga.) Chronicle has received no. 3. There is a possibility that The Portfolio was transferred to the latter named city. King, op. cit., p. 144, calls this paper "a sprightly weekly." No file.

[XXX o.s.], nos. 5-6 (My-Ju, 1861), and VI n.s. [XXXI o.s.], nos. 1-6 (Jl-D, 1861).³ 8vo., average 100pp. $5 per year. Articles on industry, government, agriculture, commerce, etc.

1. DeBow's was begun in New Orleans, and printed variously in that city, Washington, Charleston, and Columbia, S. C. Vols. I-XXXIV (Ja, 1846-Ag, 1864); after the war series, I-VIII (Ja, 1866-O, 1870); new series (#2): I, nos. 1-4 (O-Ju, 1880?). Beginning with VII (Jl-D, 1849) new series were frequently started, and numbering and variations in titles are irregular. Publication was suspended Ja-Ju, 1849; S, 1862-Ju, 1864; S, 1864-D, 1865; N, 1870-S, 1879; Ja-My, 1880. (2) In Charleston J. B. D. DeBow was assisted (during his absence from the city on government business) by his brother, B. F. DeBow (see VI, 332, S, 1861). (3) Courier, Ju 1, 1861, states that "the publishing of the Review has been removed to Charleston, S. C. The work is now, and will hereafter be printed by Evans & Cogswell of that city. . ." (see V, 684, My-Ju, 1861, for corroboration of this fact). My and Ju issues were published as one, as were O and N issues. THE SOUTHERN LUTHERAN. Weekly.¹ Ed. "A Committee of the Synod of S. C." 1861-1864, N. Aldrich and J. Bachman; 1864, A. R. Rude. Pr. in Charleston: James Phynney, 48 and 66 Broad St.; in Columbia: Evans & Cogswell.² Ag 1(?), 1861-S 4, 1864(?).³ Folio, 2-4pp. $2, 1861; $5, 1863; $8, 1864; per year. Essays, poems, religious intelligence.

1. This paper combined the features of magazine and newspaper. Courier, Ag 5, 1861, announces the reception of the first issue, and states that "the second number will be issued in a few weeks, and the regular weekly issue thereafter continued." However, I, no. 7, is dated S 28, 1861. After the first few issues of four pages, the paper became simply one sheet, printed on both sides. The Committee served as editors throughout the first volume (?), at which time Aldrich and Bachman assumed charge. They edited the paper until the summer of 1864. Rude became editor between Ap 16 and Ag 11, 1864. (2) The transfer from Charleston to Columbia came between Ag and O, 1863. (3) The compiler has found nothing to indicate positively that the paper ended at this time.

NcD: I (1861), nos. 7, 9, 11-12, 14, 17-18, 26; II (1863), nos. 77, 92, 94, 101, 103, 108, 110, 112, 116-118, 122, 125-126, 128, 134, 148, 150-151.
